Puducherry – previously known as Pondicherry – is made up of four entirely separate enclaves along the Indian coast, all of which were colonized by the French in the 18th century. Antiquated colonial buildings line the quiet cobbled streets and tree-lined avenues of the old town, and many people still speak French as their first language.

On the way to Puducherry we will visit Mahabalipuram which is renowned for its series of charming temples, known as the five Rathas.

We will have lunch at a local restaurant and continue on to Puducherry.

After the Chola dynasty, the Vijayanagara rulers played a major part in protecting the temple until the 17th century. It has stood the test of time for over a millennium.

We will also visit the ruins of Gangaikonda Cholapuram, which means "the town of the Chola king who conquered the river Ganges" in Tamil. The old city has been destroyed in several wars over the years. The only reminder of its glorious past is the 9-storey, 55-meter tower Lord Maha Shiva Temple, which must be seen to be believed. We will arrive in Kumbakonam in the late afternoon.

DAY 11 HOUSEBOAT ON KERALA BACKWATERS

This morning we drive to Alleppey (approx 4.5 hours). Upon arrival we will board our individual houseboats where we will cruise down the backwaters of Kerala, through a network of lagoons and lakes. These are slow-moving, exotic barges used for leisure trips - the reworked kettuvallams of olden times. The original kettuvallams were used to carry tons of rice and spices - a standard kettuvallam can hold up to 30 tons - from Kuttanad to the Kochi port. The kettuvallam or 'boat with knots', was so called because the entire boat was held together with coir knots only - not even a single nail is used during the construction. The boat is made of planks of jack-wood joined together with coir. This is then coated with a caustic black resin made from boiled cashew kernels. With careful maintenance, a kettuvallam can last for generations.

We will enjoy lunch and dinner aboard our houseboat prepared by the crew.

Overnight on the houseboat.

DAY 12 KUMARAKOM

The village is part of a unique initiative to transform the tiny island of Kumbalangi into a model fishing village and tourism spot. An array of mangroves separate land from water and provide a good breeding ground for prawns, crabs, oysters and small fish.

The coronation of many Rajas of Kochi was held here. The palace has a fine collection of mural paintings depicting scenes from the Hindu epics Mahabharatha and Ramayana. We will visit the Dutch cemetery as well.

The Chinese fishing nets (Cheenavala) are distinctly unique to Cochin. It is believed that traders from the court of the Chinese ruler Kublai Khan introduced these nets here. Oddly, these nets are found only in Kochi, outside of China! Many fishermen earn their livelihood by fishing using these massive nets. A whole stretch of the coast along Fort Kochi and Vypeen is dotted with these nets.

This evening, we will visit a local family to experience the Kerala cooking experience, followed by dinner.

DAY 18 MUMBAI - THE DABBAWALLA TOUR

Today we will begin with a unique dabbawalla tour. The word "dabbawalla" in Hindi means "one who carries a box" and is a profession lasting nearly 120 years. The closest meaning of the dabbawalla in English would be the "lunch box delivery man". We will learn about these aprox 5,000 dabbawallas in Mumbai who pick up some 130,000 filled dabbas from the households that prepare them and deliver the boxes to the requisite offices. They then retrieve the empty dabbas from these delivery points and return them to the originating households, in order to begin the process again the next day. This is an absolute miracle of logistics.
